Rapid-Transit Commission Plans Decided Upon.

Action to Be Taken as Soon as Mr. Steinway's Health Permits.

It has been known for some time that the members of the Rapid Transit Commission, with the exception of Chairman Steinway, who has been too ill to take any part in the deliberations of the Board, have arrived at definite conclusions as to what concessions should be made to the Elevated Railroad, in order that it may be able to give the people of this city better service and improved traveling facilities.

It is believed that Mr. Steinway will approve the plans as settled on by his colleagues as soon as he is well enough to go over them, which may be within the next week. All the details have been carefully drawn up in the resolutions which will be submitted to him.

Tenth Ward Citizens Protest Against Closing a School.

A mass-meeting of residents of the Tenth Ward has been called for tomorrow evening in the Hebrew Institute, East Broadway and Jefferson street, for the purpose of formally protesting against the action of the Board of Education in closing Primary School No. 7, at 114 Hester street, and to demand that another building be rented.

The pupils of the school formerly went to the old school building at 60 Chrystie street, but when that building was torn down they were transferred to the Hester street building pending the completion of a new school building on the site.

The Board of Education rented the Hester street building for a year, and the lease expires Feb. 27. It is said that the Board of Education has decided to rent the building for six months longer, but the owner refused to rent it under a year and for less than $10,000.

Whether or not this, the Board closed the school and distributed some of the children among the neighborhood schools. Parents of the school children have been protesting against the action of the Board of Education in compelling them to send their children to the Fourteenth Ward school.

Artesian Well Water in Flushing Stopped Flowing.

MISSING FOR TWELVE YEARS.

Lena Curran's Long Search for Her Sailor Husband.

Mrs. Lena Curran, of 222 East Thirty-third street, has been searching for twelve years in vain for her missing husband, George Curran, who sailed from this city in April, 1880, as chief officer of the American ship Bell.

At Hamburg, instead of returning to New York, he shipped as mate of the Jernholm Thompson for Australia. At Melbourne he mysteriously disappeared, leaving all his valuables on board the ship, and she has heard nothing from him directly since that time.

When the ship arrived at London, Capt. Kirby, of the Jernholm Thompson, wrote to Mrs. Curran, explaining that his first mate had not turned up when the ship fixed for sailing. He had remained in port and then taken a new name.

After arriving at London, he said he had received a letter from Curran saying that he had been discharged and robbed, and did not recover his wages until four days after the ship had sailed.

The captain added that he would hold Curran's effects in trust for twelve years and then attach them for expenses in holding the ship two days in Melbourne. Mrs. Curran has not heard a word from her husband from that day to this, and now believes that he was killed.

The most diligent search in the maritime records has failed to throw any light upon the mystery.

TO ENJOIN MRS. RAUSLEY.

Her Marriage Dissolved, Her Use of the Name Is Objected To.

The troubles growing out of the marriage in 1891 of John B. Rausley, the wealthy but eccentric Cincinnati real-estate man, to Miss Elizabeth, daughter of inventor Edward B. Speer, of 40 Madison street, this city, seem endless.

The Circuit Court of Cincinnati has just sustained the judgment of the lower court annulling the marriage, on the ground that Rausley was mentally incompetent, and now the mother and sister of Rausley propose to bring a suit in New York to prevent the use of the name.

For a few years, as the couple lived together with Miss Speer's parents at 2,050 Seventh avenue, then, one day, Rausley disappeared. He was believed to have been killed when he turned up in Cincinnati and was returned to the asylum, where he still is, a guardian having been appointed.

Coachman Brennan's Desperate Fight with a Stray Animal.

FLUSHING, L. I., March 11.—Lawrence Brennan, coachman for Dr. J. Lawrence Hicks, of Flushing, is suffering from a badly torn and seriously inflamed right hand, the result of an encounter Wednesday night with an infuriated cat that had made its bed in a blanket in the left of the stable.

It was a large gray animal, a stranger to the place, and when Brennan essayed to pick up the blanket the cat sprang at him, burying its sharp teeth in the fleshy part of the hand. It hung on, and Brennan was obliged to fairly tear the cat away. The cat sprang at him again, and he set on a wild stick.

The cat was badly hurt, and the man finally crushed in the cat's skull with the stick. But Brennan was completely exhausted, and a very ill, while his hand is terribly swollen and inflamed, and blood-poisoning is feared.

HOW SHE GOT HIM.

Dudley Smith, of Mangrove House, Sydney, Was a Young Housewife Fellow.

One morning he sat in his library and pondered, as he had often pondered before, on the same subject. He thought of a wife. There was enough money in the world to buy a wife, but he thought of a wife. He thought of a wife. He thought of a wife.

"I have the money," he exclaimed, "I will never have a penny, and then I shall be a poor man. I shall be a poor man. I shall be a poor man. I shall be a poor man."

A week later, as Mr. Smith sat in his library, he thought of a wife. He thought of a wife. He thought of a wife. He thought of a wife. He thought of a wife.

His grand clothes soon began to appear, and he was a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man.

A friend soon got about that his money and property had been lost through unwise speculations, and, as a natural consequence, he lost many friends.

By two and three he ceased to know him as he met them in the street. He was a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man.

Our hero, who had not been in the street for some time, was now a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man. He was a young man.

Mr. E. H. Mosler, President of the Mosler, Bahmann & Co., who is in the city, said yesterday in regard to the withdrawal from the proposed safe combine.

"I withdrew from the combine because I learned that our factory was to be shut down as soon as the combine was formed. I do not want our factory to be shut down. I do not want our factory to be shut down. I do not want our factory to be shut down."
